WELCOME TO LINCOLN

Hello, and a warm welcome to Lincoln College. Lincoln is one of a number of colleges which make up the University of Oxford.

Whilst all colleges have their unique qualities, finding the right college to support you throughout your time at university is incredibly important. Lincoln is especially known for its close-knit community and traditional, architectural beauty. Life at Lincoln is rich in opportunities and experiences. This alternative prospectus offers an insight into college life from the perspective of the students.

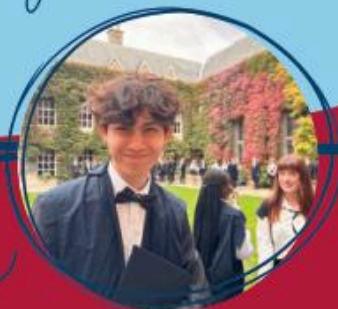

Lincoln College has a deep-rooted history in Oxford. Established in 1427, Lincoln will be celebrating its 600th birthday in 2027. It is extremely exciting to be part of such a long legacy. However, as well as being a traditional college, Lincoln College puts its current students first. The welfare system, accommodation, and generous bursary schemes are just some of the testimonies to this.

Support is abundant at Lincoln. Not only does it come from the college, but also the community. This includes the porters, domestic staff, tutors, and students. There is a chance for everyone to get involved.

We hope that this alternative prospectus provides some useful information whilst also showcasing the rich life Lincoln College has to offer.

KITCHEN

The kitchen servery is where you collect your breakfast, lunch, and early dinner. These meals are prepared by our chefs in Lincoln's medieval kitchen.

HALL

The balance between modern and traditional Oxford can be found in Lincoln's hall. We have two dinners (one formal and one informal) every day apart from Saturday. Students can choose. Formal dinners are attended by students and fellows and everyone wears their gowns.

DEEP HALL

This is the College Bar, also known as 'Deepers'. It is the venue for BOPs (Big Organised Parties), karaoke nights, pub quizzes, and darts tournaments. Deepers also acts as an alternative option for lunch. It offers a range of baguettes, salads, burgers, and snacks. The Lincoln Imp can be found in Deep Hall. He used to stand on the wall in front quad, but was moved due to weather damage. Now he is locked behind bars to stop him causing mischief!

Lincoln students are very lucky to enjoy the benefits of being part of one of the most central colleges.

This means that Lincoln is surrounded by students, shops, libraries, and university facilities.

Lincoln College was founded in 1427 by Richard Fleming, the Bishop of Lincoln.

Fleming originally founded the college to defend the mysteries of Scripture against Lollardy. After obtaining a charter from Henry VI to build the college, Fleming combined a number of parishes under the college including All Saints. This is why Lincoln Library used to be All Saints Church.

Along the way we made a college rivalry...

Brasenose are both our college neighbours and rivals. There are multiple stories as to why this has occurred. However, once a year on Ascension Day the colleges come together and forget any enmity.

The See of Lincoln Arms

The Imp hidden in Front Quad

The Imp is Lincoln College's mascot.

The story goes that two imps (little devils) were dispatched to Earth by Satan to do evil work. They found themselves at the Lincoln Cathedral where they caused mayhem, including: smashing tables, scattering hymn sheets, attacking choristers, and tripping the Bishop.

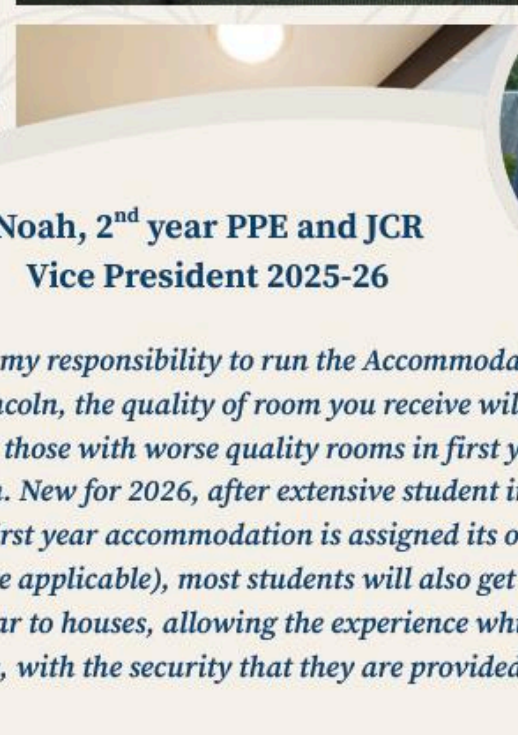

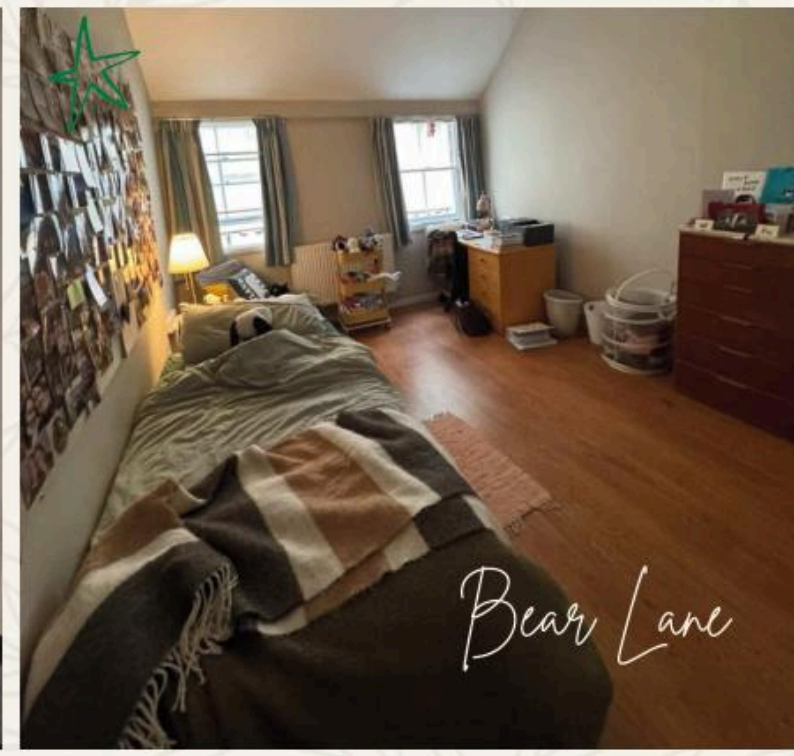

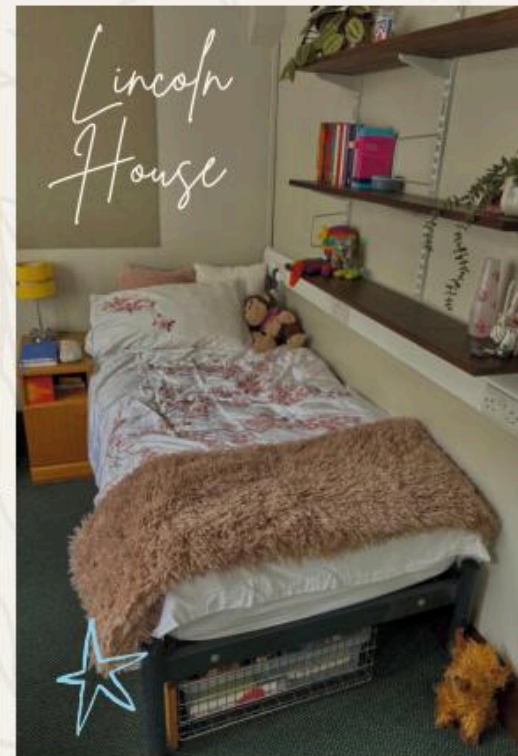

An Angel intervened, turning one of them to stone – but the other Imp escaped! Lincoln College features various imps, for example the one above the dining hall, leering down upon students as they go for their regular meals. Another Imp is located in 'Deep Hall', Lincoln College's former wine cellar and current bar.

ACCOMMODATION

At Lincoln there are 2 guarantees:

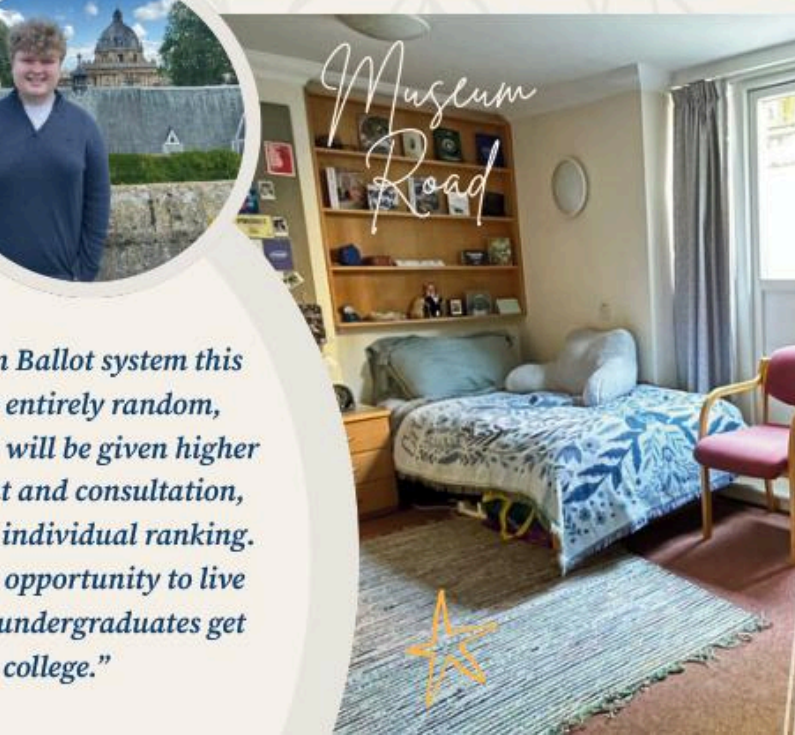

- 1 - All first year undergraduates receive en-suites
- 2 - Accommodation is guaranteed for all years of your degree

Great accommodation certainly makes Lincoln College stand out and all students can be guaranteed a comfortable space to call home during their time at university. All undergraduate accommodation is central and ensures that the Lincoln community stays close together.

Noah, 2nd year PPE and JCR
Vice President 2025-26

"As JCR Vice-President, it was my responsibility to run the Accommodation Ballot system this year. In your first year at Lincoln, the quality of room you receive will be entirely random, however going into second year those with worse quality rooms in first year will be given higher priority in selecting their room. New for 2026, after extensive student input and consultation, every single room in College's first year accommodation is assigned its own individual ranking. In third (and fourth year where applicable), most students will also get the opportunity to live in accommodation more similar to houses, allowing the experience which undergraduates get at other universities, with the security that they are provided by college."

Second Year- The Mitre and Bear Lane
Third Year onwards- Museum Road and Bear Lane

FOOD

Lincoln is a primarily catered college - especially for first years and the majority of second years who don't have access to their own kitchens. Food is provided Monday - Sunday either in Hall or Deepers (the college bar).

At the beginning of each term all students pay around £250 (this is subject to change annually) as part of Battels. This money can be managed online through the students' portal.

Hall is the hub for dining at Lincoln. Both formal and informal meals are eaten here. Compared to other colleges, Lincoln's hall has a very traditional appearance which provides an enthralling dining experience. The atmosphere is not only encapsulating but also friendly. As Lincoln has such a tight-knit community, meal times are great opportunities to catch up with friends outside of work.

Breakfast 8 AM - 9 AM

Lunch 12:35 PM - 1:30 PM

Informal Hall 6 PM - 6:30 PM

Formal Hall 7:15 PM onwards

One special part about Lincoln is the frequency of formal dinners. It is an amazing experience which can be enjoyed by students, friends from other colleges, and visitors such as family. It is also a popular way to celebrate birthdays. All Lincoln students are required to wear gowns and whilst formal attire is expected, black tie is not mandatory. Every formal dinner consists of 3 courses which are served by the lovely catering staff.

Every other Thursday, Great Hall takes place. It is similar to normal formals, but a step more formal. Alongside the 3 courses, there is also port and cheese boards. The dress code is black tie.

"I always love the Sunday formal dinner we get for the choir, it's such a nice way to spend time and chat with everyone!! And the food is delicious. A memorable formal was on my birthday, a few of us booked on to Great Hall and it was a lovely way to celebrate."

Library & Academics

Lincoln is well-known across Oxford for our Main Library, situated in what used to be All Saints Church. Its two floors holds some 60,000 books, and the library is open every day from 6:00 am to 2:00 am.

We have additional study spaces as well, including the Bear Lane Reading Room in our Bear Lane site, with the same opening hours as the Main Library, as well as our JCR Computer Room in Lincoln House, which is available to undergraduate students 24/7.

Teaching in college takes place across our various sites, all situated in central Oxford, with most teaching happening at Main Site or Lincoln House, both on Turl Street. Otherwise, tutorials may take place on High Street or in tutors' offices at their faculties and departments around Oxford. We additionally have other academic enrichment, with the College often hosting subject dinners and alumni talks, as well as giving out grants for research, such as the EPA Grant.

Chloe Brooke
Academic Affairs Officer

"Oxford is known for its tutorial system, and after two years here I fully get why. The nearly one on one support you get from the tutors, who are always willing to answer questions, and take time out of their day to explain concepts to you that you may need further help with is highly beneficial and really quite special. On top of individualised support you can get from college, your tutors will often be willing to give you a helping hand. During certain courses the essay structures change and can cause it to be a bit confusing, and once I mentioned this to my tutor, he took time out of his day to go through essay structures and what Oxford demands of us in the specific topics - it was incredibly beneficial to have this one on one time which he did not have to offer but was kindly willing to. Similarly, over your years here, life does sometimes impact your ability to get through your work (eg injuries or family issues) and all the tutors, as well as the college, is incredibly supportive - at the end of the day, whilst it may seem daunting and like they want excellence, they actually just want us to be okay and to do our best! "

"Chemistry at Oxford is an incredibly broad and interesting course, spanning everything from quantum mechanics to biological chemistry. In first year, a typical week consists of two morning lectures a day, Monday and Tuesday afternoons in the lab, one tutorial, and a maths class. The rest of the week is spent working independently on problem sheets and lab reports, usually in our gorgeous library! Tutorials rotate between inorganic, organic, and physical chemistry, and involve an hour and a half of discussion in small groups, typically just two or three students. They are a great opportunity to test your understanding and explore ideas in depth. Lincoln has a strong reputation for Chemistry, and our tutors are incredibly knowledgeable, but also patient, encouraging, and committed to helping all of us reach our potential."

Whilst the workload can be high, it is completely manageable, and with good organisation there is still plenty of time left over for societies, playing sport, nights out, and most importantly, sleep!

Lincoln has around six chemists in each year group, and there is a strong tradition of older students helping and supporting younger years, so advice is always available if you need it. One of the highlights of the year is our annual Chemistry subject dinner, which brings together students and tutors and perfectly captures the sense of community that makes Lincoln special."

Isabella, 2nd year Chemistry

"Modern Languages at Oxford is a really diverse course which can be studied in a variety of different combinations or by themselves – a 'sole' language. The course is split in two with one half focussing on literature and the other on language (including translation and oral). In your first year, the literature side of the course covers everything from medieval texts to modern day authors, looking at a variety of genres such as plays, poetry, novels and essays. In your second and fourth years you will decide on a period to specialise in (Modern, Early Modern or Medieval) and a couple of authors to focus in depth on. One of the great things about a Modern Languages degree is the opportunity to go on a year abroad (normally in your 3rd year) and Oxford are really useful at supporting you to find opportunities but at the same time allowing you enough freedom to choose an activity that you are interested in and also the flexibility to divide your time in different countries however you see fit."

In terms of a normal week as a languages student, there will usually be 1 tutorial a week (with an essay to submit before each one) in a really small group to explore the literature papers as well as a translation into English and another into the target language per week followed by a class for each one to go over any corrections. But if this ever feels unmanageable the Lincoln tutors are really supportive and will always be willing to listen to any worries you may have. The number of oral classes offered for Spanish is one every week and for French it will differ between colleges but will usually be one every week or every other week. These are all taught by native speakers, really providing the opportunity to develop your language skills. There are also lectures to attend (usually around 2-3 each week) which will cover the content of the literature papers in more depth."

Lincoln also provides students with travel grants and for linguists specifically there is a special Modern Linguist grant providing financial support for travels relating to your degree."

Fran, 2nd year French and Spanish

SUBJECT TESTIMONIALS

"In English, you have the chance to study literature ranging all the way from 650 to the present day. In your first year, you encounter the Victorians, the modernists, and the post-modernists (a slightly edgy and confusing bunch). You also get to grips with Old English, which is a steep learning curve, as it is very different to modern English, but really intriguing. And we encounter literary theory and linguistics for the first time too, which also feels tough and confusing at first, but you soon get used to it."

Typically, a week's study in English involves going to two classes, writing an essay (sometimes two), translating a passage of Old English, and, hopefully, creeping your way to lectures. The tutors at Lincoln are really nice and they always give helpful advice and feedback in tutorials; we're often paired with someone who's written on a similar topic, making the discussions really rewarding."

All of the years come together for a medieval film night in Trinity (this year we're watching A Knight's Tale), which is always nice. In English, you'll have plenty of time to enjoy extracurriculars too: Lincoln has a Drama Society if you like the performing arts and there are plenty of magazines and newspapers to get involved in too."

Jason, 2nd year English

"Studying Law is an exciting intellectual challenge. From trying to understand what the law is from reading a range of case law, to critically analysing what the law should be and applying the law to unique (and often silly!) problems. You will soon find that the law is made of an amalgamation of rules that may be hopelessly vague or convoluted, and that judges often contradict each other or make mistakes. As a Law student, you have to try to make sense of various rules and principles in order to write critical essays and advise people in hypothetical problem questions."

At Lincoln, we have three Law fellows. This means that, unlike at some other colleges, most of our teaching is done in-house. This allows the Lincoln tutors to get to know you very well as they teach you multiple subjects. Where our tutors lack expertise, we are sent to other colleges that our tutors have reciprocal teaching relationships with."

Tutorials are typically made up of 2-3 students and what we do during these tutorials varies from tutor to tutor. Some tutorials consist of students reading their essays out loud and receiving on-the-spot feedback, and other tutorials are more discussion-based with tutors setting a list of questions to consider for each reading list. In addition to every tutor providing tutorials, some tutors supplement tutorials with weekly seminars and revision classes in the run up to exams."

Outside of academics, Lincoln College Law Society also organises annual dinners with law firms, moots and careers talks."

SPORTS AND SOCIETIES

Sports

Rugby

Netball

Sport operates on 2 main levels: college and university. To become a 'blues' player (the highest level) students play for the university. It is possible to play for both university and college, but if you are part of a university team this generally takes most of your commitment. College level sports are equally as fun but more relaxed. However, we are still competitive! Teams are composed of all undergraduate years which provides opportunity to make friends across years and subjects. There are many sports on offer at Lincoln including netball, football, running, and cricket.

Societies

There are many societies to get involved with at Lincoln. Some are just for Lincolnites whilst others are run across colleges by the university or students. During Freshers Week there is a Freshers Fair where you can sign up to clubs- but don't worry there are always chances to join later in the year! Also, if you find that there is a society which doesn't exist then there are chances to make your own with the support of College. For example, a group of freshers recently established a Cheese Society!

"Rowing at Lincoln is one of the most accessible sports at the college, as it is completely free and open to everyone. Before coming to Oxford, I had never rowed before, but the boat club was incredibly welcoming and supportive from the start. It is a great way to meet people across different years and backgrounds, and quickly become part of the college community. There are also plenty of opportunities to race both in Oxford and further afield, making rowing a fun and rewarding way to challenge yourself while representing Lincoln."

Lauren, 2nd year French and History

vacproj

VacProj

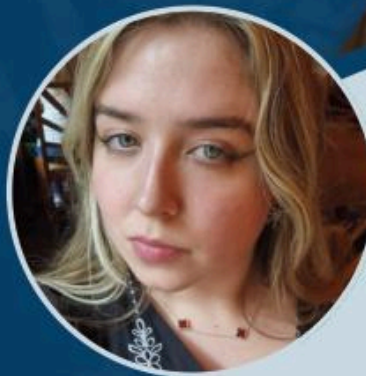

VacProj (Vacation Project) is a charity run by students of Lincoln College which has been running for over 50 years. It takes disadvantaged children from Oxfordshire on week-long holidays in the Summer. These children are often known to social care and may have difficult situations at home. The holidays provide a break from home lives, and a chance to enjoy themselves as kids.

Welfare

At Lincoln, student welfare is prioritised; in fact, Lincoln has one of the most robust welfare schemes of any college. In the JCR, we have two Welfare Officers who are peer-support trained, for undergrads to come and talk to.

The JCR has two Welfare Officers who are peer-support trained, for undergrads to come and talk to. They are responsible for organising weekly Welfare Teas (essentially a time for people to gather with lots of free snacks) and hosting activities throughout term, particularly in Week 5, to combat the infamous 'week five blues.' They also provide sexual health supplies, oversee the Welfare working group, and liaise with college, in particular, Lisa, the Welfare Coordinator.

Lisa Stokes-King is our Student Welfare Coordinator, overseeing welfare provision at Lincoln: the team includes a College Nurse, a Chaplain, and a Counsellor (in college once a week). You'll meet Lisa when you arrive at Lincoln, and at various events and workshops, but you can go to her with any problem or worry that you have, or just for a chat over a cup of tea and a biscuit. She'll help you find the best place to get support, or just listen if that's what you need. She's heard pretty much everything, and is impossible to shock! Lisa works closely with the JCR Welfare Officers as well as the College Team.

"As Welfare Officer, I organise various events tailored to everyone's interests including Arts and Crafts and free snacks every week! We are trained to listen and support the JCR at all times through any issues, and direct to the right resources. Welfare at Lincoln truly is one of a kind due to the deep connection we make with our peers; from moving in day, the JCR Welfare Officer's tend to be the first faces you recognise. It truly is an honour!"

Madison Stanton-Kami
Welfare Officer

"To echo Madison's point, welfare at Lincoln really is about making everybody feel at home. Welfare is all about being a friendly face around college, getting to know your peers, and being somebody to talk to if and when you are needed. Welfare is incredibly flexible, so some free snacks every week can cater for certain people, whereas a welfare-organised darts tournament may be more up others' streets! It is a true privilege to look after the JCR's welfare!"

Welfare Officer
Daniel Mayers-Jones

Chapel & Choir

Each Sunday angelic melodies ring out over Chapel Quad when the Lincoln College Choir takes part in the college's weekly Evensong service.

Perks of being part of the choir:

- Free weekly singing lessons with Ben Davies (a member of 'The Sixteen') for all choir members.
- Free Sunday Formals and occasionally free Dominos!
- Fun socials throughout the term!
- Contact Senior Organ Scholar Louis Fletcher for more information about the choir! louis.fletcher@lincoln.ox.ac.uk

Rehearsals are at 4 pm Sundays and 7 pm Wednesdays.
Evensong is 6 pm every Sunday.

Louis Fletcher
Senior Organ Scholar

"Lincoln College Chapel Choir has been a fantastic way to meet students from across Oxford – as well as from the JCR and MCR. The year is filled with highlights, including the Coombe Church Carol Concert, TSAF Evensong with Exeter and Jesus, and Ascension Day, when the choir sings from the top of Lincoln's Main Lodge tower. Most of all, I value the weekly rhythm of rehearsal, Evensong, and Sunday formal, which has given structure to my time at Oxford and led to many of my closest friendships."

ENTERTAINMENT

Deep Hall, or 'Deepers,' is our college bar and the centre of life at the college after dinner! Our bar stocks a wide range of alcoholic beverages (beers, ciders, wines, spirits) as well as non-alcoholic options (lemonade, Coke, and Redbull are all popular).

Deepers

In addition to drinks, Deepers also sells sandwiches and salads during lunch, as well as confectionery items such as crisps, chocolates, and ice cream during the Summer. The smoothies are also a fan-favorite.

Deepers is a lovely place to spend an evening with friends, with darts and a game room with a pool table and table football as well! It's one of the quieter bars in Oxford and is, as such, quite an intimate space to be with friends in! The 'foxholes' are a lovely addition that is also perfect for friendly conversation.

"Social events (and freshers week) at Lincoln are run by the Entz team! We tend to run around 1-2 events per week, including the highly anticipated black tie drinks and groove quad (with unlimited alcoholic and non-alcoholic drinks), as well as festive events for Halloween and Christmas such as movie and quiz nights. We make sure to have a range of events, with drinking and non-drinking events so no matter who you are, everyone can relax and have fun, taking advantage of the friendly, fun community at Lincoln.

Most importantly, we're in charge of BOPs, which are super fun themed college parties! They take place in Deepers, and are a great way to celebrate the end of term or other festivals such as Mayday or Valentines. We also run many intercollegiate socials to help you make friends at other colleges such as formal swaps and megabops, allowing you to make the most of your time at Oxford."

Helen Davies

Entz Team

JCR

Junior Common Room

The JCR is a space completely run by the undergraduate student body. The 'JCR' simultaneously refers to the students and the common room which is situated in Chapel Quad. There are many roles which students can run for. Each one entails a different level of commitment. Even if students aren't part of the JCR committee they always have a chance to take part in the JCR meetings which take place three times a term. Students can put forward motions which are voted upon by all who come. The meetings also always come with free pizza!

During Hilary Term 2026 the JCR went through a major refurb. It was conducted entirely by undergraduate students.

Now Lincoln has a fresh common room which combines traditional dark academia with new leather sofas, quality wooden furniture, and a plush statement rug.

Darren's Lincoln Experience

JCR President
2025-26

Why Lincoln?

There's lots of things I can point to in order to explain why I love Lincoln – the central accom, the library, Fish and Chip Fridays – but at the end of the day it always comes back to the people. There are a lot of colleges that claim to be the 'friendliest', but for me it's the fact that our whole cohort lives so close to each other that creates such a homely vibe. It means that I can't walk down Turl Street without running into a fellow Lincolnite, or that I always have someone to catch up with over dinner in hall. I think it's a real privilege that I actually know and can have a chat with anyone in my college, whether they're my course mate, someone in another year, or one of the many friendly porters. It's a real testament to the tight-knit community we've got here.

My Degree

Coming into Oxford doing French and History (which has proven to be a more niche degree), I didn't really know what to expect. Nevertheless, I've found it such an enjoyable, challenging and intellectually stimulating experience. I was definitely nervous about balancing the joint honours degree, but they work together so well. It's really nice to be able to swap from one to the other when one just isn't clicking. My tutors also make such an effort not only to tailor my course to my interests, but also to make sure the workload is manageable, and that the whole languages and history cohorts respectively are connected. Definitely not complaining either about my year abroad in third year, when I'll be able to take a step back from the bustle of uni life to really gain confidence and fluency with my spoken French.

What I get up to

I've really tried to embrace all aspects of uni life, which for me has meant joining in clubs and socs outside my degree. This year, that has mainly been my role as JCR President, representing the views of all the undergrads at Lincoln. Beyond this, I've gotten involved in Lincoln History Soc, VacProj (our JCR's very own charity!) and some uni-wide initiatives like Food Rescuers and It Happens Here. I've really enjoyed throwing myself into all of the college sports on offer, whether that's my occasional appearance for Lincoln FC, or starting my career in college rowing. We work hard to make sport accessible to all, regardless of experience or skill level, which means college is very happy to buy us kit, grant us free access to the uni gym, or subsidise rowing so that membership is free. When I look back on my time here at Lincoln, I'm sure it's going to be these memories from these various sports and socs that will shine the brightest, which is majorly thanks to the people and college.

"As CRED rep, my job is to make sure that everyone feels welcome and represented at Lincoln, no matter which faith or culture. To this end, the JCR provides generous financial support for me to plan events that celebrate diversity at Lincoln. For example, I work closely with the college to organise cultural formals for festivals like Diwali, Eid and Hanukkah as well as ad hoc events throughout the year (e.g dinner at a local restaurant with POC Lincolnites where we try foods from various regions of the world!)"

Sophie Lin
CRED Representative

Diversity & Inclusion

Lincoln takes pride in its diverse student community and aims to make the college a place where everyone feels they belong. Not only do we have an annual 'Lincoln Unites' week where we celebrate diversity at Lincoln with various events and activities, but we also have a JCR CRED (Cultural, Religious, Ethnic Diversity) Rep, LGBTQIA+ Rep, Gender Rep, Disabilities Rep and International Students Rep whose job is to represent students from all backgrounds. Lincoln also has an accommodating multi-faith prayer room for those that wish to use it.

Lincoln's central location also means that it's near many places of worship, including:

- University Church (3 min walk)
- Muslim Prayer Room (10 min walk)
- Synagogue and Jewish Center (13 min walk)
- Hindu Chaplaincy (5 min walk)
- Catholic Chaplaincy (7 min walk)
- Oxford Buddhist Center (9 min walk)
- Oxford Central Mosque (25 min walk)

FINANCIAL SUPPORT

Lincoln is incredibly generous with their College bursaries and financial help. When you accept your offer, you're considered for Lincoln's bursaries – you don't have to do anything or apply, which is helpful as it's a busy time preparing for university without having to worry about money. Oxford itself has many university-wide financial support schemes, and so if you don't qualify for a bursary, there are other financial support funds in place if you need them. There are also student support funds if you experience any unexpected financial difficulties during term. If you're struggling, you can always speak to your tutor or the College Student Support Advisor.

In the 2025-26 academic year, we awarded bursaries to over 100 undergraduates, and the average annual award is now £2,210.44. Awards increase annually with or above inflation. 34% of all undergraduates are currently receiving a bursary.

Lincoln offers a large number of bursaries and hardship awards, as well as prizes for academic achievement, grants for travel, and funds to support extra-curricular activities; none of which need to be repaid and all of which are made in addition to any financial support you may get from the University of Oxford.

Book grants (which refunds you up to 50% of the cost of essential texts) and laptop lending (throughout entirety of the degree) are just some examples of more everyday help Lincoln provides on top of the larger funds and bursaries.

Lots more information and specific detail is on the "Finance and Funding" page on the lincoln.ox.ac.uk website.

The Turl' Launch Party

The Imp' Launch

the ARTS at Lincoln

Lincoln undergraduates are known for their commitment to the arts at Oxford, with a flourishing arts and magazine scene in College, as well as many taking their experience out into the broader University arts scene.

Lincoln has a very active arts scene. The Imp is our termly satirical magazine that features snippets of college life and is a friendly staple in the Lincoln JCR community. We further host the Turl Street Arts Festival every year in collaboration with Jesus and Exeter, which is a fantastic opportunity to explore and celebrate the arts. Our JCR has a designated Arts Rep for the Turl Street Arts Festival (TSAF). Lincoln undergrads are also traditionally very involved in the Turl Magazine, which is a termly arts magazine based on Turl Street also co-run by Jesus and Exeter.

"The Imp is Lincoln's satirical magazine, enshrined in the College constitution and in print since 1921. Armed with a generous budget and near-total editorial freedom, it exists to make sure Lincoln never takes itself too seriously. This balance of tradition and irreverence says a great deal about the College itself: centuries old and highly prestigious, yet cheerfully self-deprecating and always ready for a laugh at its own expense. Between the frighteningly dull and stuffy and the numbingly sanctimonious and saccharine, rest assured you could do much worse than Lincoln, and the Imp is simply a small but devilishly efficient part of our unparalleled atmosphere."

Bruno Lykiadopoulos

Imp Editor

Lulu Frisson

Arts Rep & Editor in Chief of the Turl Magazine HT26

"Turl Street is a great place to call home if you're into the arts. The Turl magazine, which has grown to be a University-wide project, consistently draws its Editors-in-Chiefs from Lincoln, and is a brilliant stepping stone into writing or editing. Every Hilary term, Lincoln is involved in TSAF, which is a week-long festival celebrating the arts with events like a scrapbooking and wine evening. Get stuck into whatever takes your fancy here - whether you're into art, theatre, fashion or magazine-making, Oxford has an incredibly strong student arts scene that is truly not as daunting or impenetrable as it may seem; I've had a lot of fun meeting like-minded people from other colleges through The Turl and other University-wide projects. Lincoln itself really does attract some of the most creative and welcoming people, and as a college takes the arts seriously. There's always someone to be found writing a play, editing a piece for a magazine or taking part in a fashion shoot here; there's always, too, support and resources available to try new things."

Why LINCOLN COLLEGE

"Lincoln is known for its strong sense of community, and its welcoming atmosphere made me feel right at home as a fresher. It has the most beautiful college library, and the ivy is unsurpassed! Also, as a medical student, I love that we're guaranteed accommodation for all 6 years of our course."

Riya, 1st Year Medicine

"I chose Lincoln because of how close the community we have here is, how central the college is and the beautiful library, dining hall and ivy. And this has payed off due to the amazing friends I've met."

Esther, 1st year Chemistry

"When I was shown around Lincoln on the open day, I was struck by how friendly everyone was, which is why I ended up choosing to apply here! Looking back on it, the people who showed me round were such good representations of what the Lincoln community is like - everyone is so kind and welcoming!"

Sophia, 1st year French and German

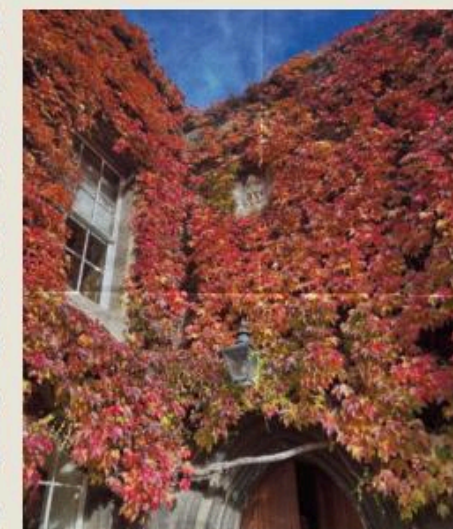

"My favourite thing about studying at Lincoln and Oxford in general are the libraries and the cafes (shout out to Love Co Coffee who let us sit there for HOURS and bring us water). The town is set up for students - and our luck to have over 30 (or something like that) different libraries you can attend to that are so old and beautiful is a true honour."

Chloe, 2nd year Law
